2023 – A Year of swinging fortunes

Just as we turned the corner after the Covid pandemic, we walked right into a massive geo-political turmoil, energy crisis and growing economic uncertainty.

Bearing in mind all the headwinds, the shipping industry has dealt with this complex environment remarkably well. However, the economic picture is rapidly changing, and we observe considerable sentiment shifts.

So, what are the prospects for the shipping and shipbuilding markets in the coming years? Let us examine seaborne trade, earnings, the newbuilding and second-hand markets. Have the environmental regulations and the shift to green fuels started reshaping the maritime markets?

Please join us and learn more.
